St Peter's

THE CHURCHES CONSERVATION TRUST

The Churches Conservation Trust is a national charity which looks after over three hundred historically and architecturally important churches, including seven in Sussex, like St Peter's, that are no longer used for regular worship.

Listed Grade II*, St Peter's remains a consecrated church in the care of the Trust, which ensures the preservation, maintenance and management of the building.

Please sign the Visitor's Book and, if you can, make a donation, which will help to maintain this ancient building.

An important medieval church

About the Friends of St Peter's

We are an enthusiastic committee, working closely with The Churches Conservation Trust. Our aims are to increase awareness of the history of this wonderful building and to encourage greater use of the church for community and educational events.

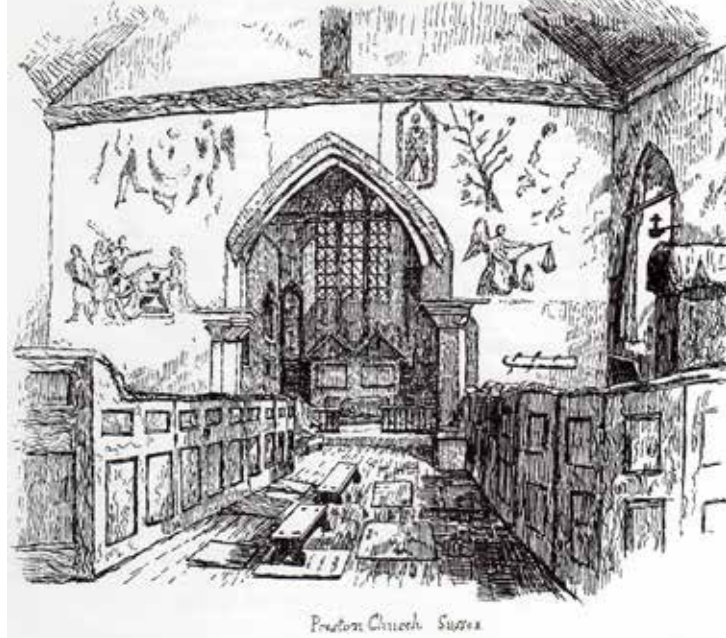

The Friends arrange special fund-raising events throughout the year such as our Midsummer Tea Party, held each June.

We ensure the church is open from at least 11 am to 3 pm every day of the year, and often longer, especially in summer.

As a member you are entitled to vote at the AGM and receive a regular newsletter with information of forthcoming events and progress of the Friends' projects.

A drawing of the church in 1851

Built in around 1250, St Peter's is the oldest building in Brighton. It is notable for its fascinating 13th century wall paintings which survived a disastrous fire in 1906. These depict the Nativity, St Michael weighing souls and the murder of Thomas Becket. This last painting is the second oldest depiction of the event.

The altar is, unusually, a finely-carved tomb-chest – that of Edward Eldrington – who lived in the adjacent Preston Manor and died in 1515.

Can you help?

If you would like to join us to help conserve this beautiful building by, for instance:

- making cakes for events
- being a key-holder
- cleaning
- assisting at events
- delivering leaflets
- being on our committee
- fund-raising

Then tick the box and we'll be in touch.
